LIVELY AND DULL.

Moore, of Montana, Cross-Examined in the Star Route Trial.

The Increase of Trips--Circulation of Petitions-- A Missing Petition Found.

The Court Objects to Col. Ingersoll's Comments or Side Remarks During the Trial.

Boone Expected to Give Some Particularly Interesting Testimony To-Day.

The cross-examination of the witness Moore was continued in the star route trial yesterday. In answer to Mr. Ingersoll he said that when he returned from the west, Senator Dorsey paid his account up to date without Dorsey paid his account up to date without reference to his books. He received a check for $250 in payment. Made his first statement to the government officers in the latter part of December last. James Kether and Mr. Woodward were the only persons present on that occasion. Did not receilect positively whether or not anything was said in that statement about fraudulent petitions. It did state that Dorsey furnished the money, and state that Dorsey furnished the money, and expected to get his routes increased and expedited. The witness was questioned at length in regard to the contents of the statement, but declined to make positive answers.

Mr. Merrick offered to put the two statements of the statement of the contents in evidence has ments made by the witness in evidence, but the offer was declined at this stage of the pro-ceedings. Mr. Ingersoll asked if the witness ceedings. Mr. Ingersoll asked if the witness had told Wm. H. Betts on Friday last that if he wanted to hear some music he had better come over to the courtbouse; that the govcome over to the courthouse; that the government had called upon him to testify; that he was not going upon the stand, and that he was not going to testify until Boone had been granted immunity?

A. Not to him or any other living man.
Q. Did you not say that Wm. Cook had given an opinion that if Merrick, Bliss and Ker promised to drop Boone's case he could hold them to it?

Q. You did not tell Betts that you would let up on Dorsey for $10,000?

A. No; nor any one else.
Q. You are as positive about that as anything you have sworn to?
A. Yes; and more positive. Witness believed that the first check received by him from Dorsey was for $500 or more. He had also three $100 checks payable to himself.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, indirty sponsette your account and receive your salary up to July 11, 1878, from John R. Miner?

A. No, sir; Miner was not in town then. I did have a settlement with Miner for some expenses incurred after the eleventh of July.

Q. Did you not tell Dorsey that Miner, Peetle & Co owed you 8500; and ask him to. Peck & Co. owed you $250; and ask him to advance the money to you in Miner's ab-

A. Yes, sir; the day before I left Washington in July.
Mr. Ingersoll read the paper. It was as follows: "Denver, Col., July 24, 1878—Received from Juo. R. Miner $166 as balance of collections of the paper." satary and expenses in full to July 11, 1878.

Witness said that the paper had been signed in Washington; was positive that Williamson did not make the subcontract with McBean. (In answer to Mr. Wilshire.) Rerdell took no part in the conversa-and himself.

Mr. Merrick then examined the witness. H. sa'd the receipt produced by Mr. Ingersoll was for money spent for telegrams, hotel bills, and other expenses, and did not include any items covered by his settlement with Dorsey. Witness identified the check given by Miner for which he had given the receipt. He also identified receipt given by him to Miner for $5,000, to be used in stocking routes in Oregon, Washington territory, and northern California; did not remember whether or not John W. did not remember whether or not John W. Dorsey signed the first check given to him.

Mr. Merrick. State how you were "frozen out," as you said yesterday.

A. I have never been able to find out.

On cross examination witness said Senator Dorsey's name did not appear in the written contract allowing the witness an interest in the business. Made his final settlement with Miner in October or November, 1878. It was at that time that Miner told him the firm was without money. Thought that Dorsey was morally indebted to him; but the debt could not be collected. He signed a relinquishment of all his claims in return for $682 received from Miner. (The receipt was he put in evidence by the defence.)

Mr. Merrick. Who composed the firm of
Miner, Peck & Co., in addition to those persons mentioned in the contract?
Mr. Ingersoll. I object.
Mr. Merrick. Of course you do.

The objection was overruled, and the wit-

"Good byc, sir," said the witness, with a smile, as he stepped down.
The subcontractor Major was then recalled, and asked to relate the conversation between himself and Moore in relation to increase of service upon the Redding-Altura route.

Objection was made by the defense, and argument followed.

gument followed.

The court overruled the objection, saying that Moore's evidence stood unimpeached so far, and indeed seemed to be corroborated by some collateral evidence. If the evidence was sustained by the testimony of the witness, as proposed, it would strengthen the position taken by the government in this case.

Mr Ingersoll excepted to the expression in the option that Mogre's testimony had not the opinion that Moore's testimony had not been impeached,—but upon an explanation by the court, that the term was used in the sense that no witness had been introduced to impeach him,—the exception was withdrawn. The witness Major recounted his interview with Moore, wherein the latter promised increase of trips, in Dorsey's name, and produced a power of attorney signed by Miner, Peck & Company, as evidence of his au-thority. Witness had told Moore that the price agreed upon for the original service would not pay horse feed, and this promise was made in answer to that objection. Wit-ness then took the contract, and the increase and expedition followed, according to the

The Court. Mr. Ingersoll, you are carrying this thing too far; the court will not put up with this kind of comment, "Good." You may as well say, "Bully for you."

"Well, I'll take it back," said Mr. Ingersoll. The witness Powers was recalled for cross-examination, which took a wide range, and finally led the court to exclaim, "It is almost intolerable; the waste of time; the duliness with which the cross-examinations have been conducted during this trial. I shall have to conducted during this trial. I shall have to be a great deal shorter than I have been, for we shall run into next summer with this case." Without concluding the cross-examination, the court adjourned. It is understood that Boone will take the stand to-morrow, and give some particularly interesting testimony.

NO BILL.

The Grand Jury Unanimously Declines to Indlet Mr. Dickson.

It was learned last evening that the grand ury yesterday decided to find no bill against Mr. William Dickson, in connection with the alleged jury fixing arising out of the first star route case, and would so report to Judge Wy-lie to-day. On obtaining this information a REPUBLICAN reporter called on Special As-sistant Attorney H. H. Wells to find out from him whether the action of the grand jury had been officially communicated to him. Mr. Wells said he had heard that the grand jury would return no bill, but he had received no direct intination of it, and hardly expected to, as the matter will be reported to the court.
"Does that end the case against Mr. Dickson?" said the reporter.

"That ends the case as far as this com-plaint is concerned," replied Mr. Wells, in a rather guarded tone.

What do you mean by this 'complaint?' "The grand jury were considering the case as sent to them from the police court and ex-amining witnesses to find out if there was a

Will you take any further action in the matter?"
Mr. Wells declined to say what his course might be in the future, but his guarded man-ner in answering seemed to intimate that he had some reserve batteries. "Can Dickson bring an action against anybody now?" "Browster Cameron, for instance," Mr. Wells laughed, and, after a moment's pause, said, "I hardly think he will." Fursaing his investigations further the reporter learned that after carefully considering all the evidence laid before them the grand jury had come to the conclusion that there was no case against Mr. Dickson and decided, by unanimous vote, to take no action. When the news was known Mr. Dickson was the center of newspaper attraction. Of course he regarded the action of the grand jury as his complete vindication. He declines to say at present what action he may now take in regard to the matter.

FIRES AND FIRE ESCAPES.

Chief Engineer Cronin Makes a Statement -How to Avoid Disasters at Fires.

The fire that occurred yesterday morning in the carriage house and stables attached to the government printing office has called forth a statement from the chief engineer of the fire department to the effect that the main building should be promptly supplied main building should be promptly supplied with rapid means of escape for the employes in the event of a conflagration, and this could be done by means of portable canvas chutes. By this means the building, he says, could be emptied in four or five minutes beyond a doubt, as they are safe, expeditious, and easily adjusted, and can be removed from one part of the building to the other instantly. It is a notorious fact that the commission having charge of the erection of stand pipes and ladders for the government printing office and insane asylum have allowed the contracting parties for the erec-tion of said apparatus to peddle away the time specified in their contract for the com-pletion of said work (namely, forty-five days from the twelfth day of December last) in a dilatory manner on the insane asylum, leaving the printing office with its tons of inflamma a material without any protection in case of fire for the safety of life or the protection of property. Seven months and two weeks have now the protection of property. crty. Seven months and two weeks have now elapsed since congress made the appropriation for the immediate crection of those very essential and necessary appliances for the government printing office, and had not the fire department responded promptly and subdued the fire early yesterday morning there is scarcely a doubt but there would have been a repetition of the Milwaukee holocaust. The escapes should have been put up months ago. Delays are dangerous, and experimental com-missions may become responsible for many

Chief Engineer Cronin has directed W. O. Avery, the inventor, to furnish portable canvas fire-escape chutes for the use of the fire department. They will be carried to fires on the hook and ladder trucks.

He brought the case here upon a writ of error, with the intention of testing the constitutionality of the Virginia law, but when the case was called this afternoon he virtually allowed it to go against him by default, having taken no steps to prosecute the appeal. An explanation of his apparent negligence may perhaps be found in the fact that the court now has under consideration a case from Alabama, which involves precisely the same question, namely, the constitutionality of a question, namely, the constitutionality of a state law prohibiting miseegenation. The Alabama case is entitled "Tony Pace and another against the state of Alabama," and also arises out of the living together of a negro and a white woman. Tinsley, the plaining in the case dismissed this aftertiff in error in the case dismissed this afternoon, probably thought it unnecessary to go to the expense of employing counsel to prosecute his appeal, when the principle at issue would shortly be decided in a case already

FREED FROM A BRUTAL HUSBAND.

Martha A. Morgan was yesterday divorced from Van Rensselaer Morgan, given the cus-tody of her child and $25 a month alimony, and the defendant ordered to pay costs of suit. The divorce was granted on a cross petition. The parties were married Jan. 20, 1862, in Norfolk, Va. At the time of their 1862, in Noriols, Va. At the time of their marriage the respondent was a lieutenant in the confederate service and dependent on his pay for his support. After the close of the war the petitioner returned to her father's house and lived there some time, but again returned to her husband, when he commenced to treate her very cruelly, using insulting words and being very violent. On several occasions he assaulted her and has always spoken in a very slighting manner of her. The respondent has failed to properly provide for the petitioner and she has been obliged to support herself from money received from her late mother's estate and from her sister. Morgan was a licutenant in the United States mavy when the war broke out. He was known as a "commodore" in the confederate service. After the close of the rebellion he came to this city and secured a place as "de-molisher of the old jail," and afterward as permit clerk at the Columbia buildings. He

Another Adroit Swindle.

Another Adroit Swindle.

The two swindlers who adroitly fleeced Mr. Denekas out of $100 on the diamond racket, also played it on another gentleman named Weis, No. 325 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. It seems that one of them entered Weis's store, took a seat, and began talking on commonplace topics, when the younger man entered, and appeared to be in due distress, weeping and wringing his hands. When asked what was the matter, he said he had two very fine German tableto prepare petitions so that the heads might be cut off and others substituted. Moore did not say that, and Rev. Dr. Poulson.

The young man appealed to Mr. Weis, who fell into the net appealed to Mr. Wels, who fell into the net and advanced the money, for which he is now walking the floor gnashing his teeth. The tablecloths are probably worth $2. The two men will be brought over from Baltimore on Saturday to answer to the charges of swindling Mr. Denekas and Mr. Weis, who is very anxious to see them again.

BEWARE THE PLAGUE.

Fears That Clerks Residing in Baltimore May Spread Smallpox Through the Departments.

To the Editor. All the way from one to two hundred clerks employed in the government departments here live in Baltimore and come here daily to their work and return at night. Many of these persons live in the very heart of the infeeted districts, and their presence here while living thus places in constant and imminent jeopardy the lives of many thousands of peo-ple here, who are compelled by their business to be in continuous association with these infected clerks. The fact that these persons are per-mitted to come and go back and forth between cieras. The fact that these persons are permitted to come and goback and forth between the scat of the plague and our pure and healthful city is an outrage, of which a number of bureau officials have, within the past week, refused to take cognizance, so long as their immediate persons were not in danger from the infection. It is clearly within the province of the health officer to put an end to this dangerous contagion during the prevalence of the epidemic in Baltimore, and we write this note, Mr. Editor, as two of the interested clerks, hoping that the usually efficient gentleman at the head of the health office will take notice and give the subject his immediate attention. One of two things should be done: The Baltimore clerks should be compelled to stay in Washington or else stay at home while the plague is in progress. There is no subject in which a greater number of our best citizens are more immediately and deeply interested.

Peter Min was drowned, and his body being recovered by Brooks King about 5:40, was taken to the house of his mother, the daughter of Mr. Horace G. Ritter.
